This Month Cover: Ninnaji temple

Ninnaji is one of the most famous temples in Japan and was recognized as a UNESCO World Heritage site in 1994. Ninnaji was built in the 9th century by the Emperor and was seriously damaged by fire during the Onin Civil war in the 15th century. It was moved from the Imperial Palace in Kyoto and reconstructed at its current site in the early 17th century. Now, the temple is used as headquarters for the Omuro School of the Shingon Sect of Buddhism.

The best place to visit is Goten, the former residence of the head priest. It is built in the style of the imperial palace surrounded by beautiful rocks and ponds.

The temple is well known for its late blooming cherry trees "Omuro Cherries". Ninnaji is good to visit at the end of Kyoto's Cherry Blossom season.

MarugameSeimen Noodle Shop coming to Myanmar Courting partners at symposium

On February 5 at the "Organization to Promote Japanese Restaurants Abroad" symposium held in Yangon, the President of food major "Toridoll", Mr. Takaya Awata, announced that he was preparing to bring his udon restaurant chain "MarugameSeimen" to Myanmar. He courted the local Myanmar restaurant companies packed into the room saying, "We cannot expand overseas just on our own. We need a local partner!"

From 2010, Toridoll began expanding overseas focusing on North America and Asia and it now has 95 restaurants. MarugameSeimen allows customers to choose their own toppings with self service and has grown rapidly with its low prices. In Myanmar, there are hardly any restaurant chains, so MarugameSeimen believes there is plenty of room for growth. At the symposium, President Awata shared his expectations that "With a good partner, we could open at least 50 stores".

JCB introduces a Debit Card for Myanmar people

On January 14, JCB announced that it would launch a Debit Card for Myanmar people in cooperation with Myanmar Payment Union (MPU), the national settlements system managed by the Central Bank. The card will be co-branded with MPU and launched in the middle of 2015. Banks under the MPU umbrella can issue the card to their customers who have a bank account.

Previous MPU cards could only be used inside Myanmar. The newly issued card will be able to use the JCB network which is available in 190 countries. JCB's subsidiary for overseas business JCB International signed the Memorandum on January 9. JCB International's CEO Mr. Koremitsu Sannomiya said "With continued growth in Myanmar, there is a bright future for the settlement card market. Foreign Joint Ventures can invest in Securities Companies

On January 10, Myanmar's Deputy Minister of Finance Dr. Maung Maung Thein clarified at a "Yangon Stock Exchange" Seminar that foreign invested joint ventures with Myanmar companies would be eligible to become Securities Companies. The stock exchange is being set up with the cooperation of the Daiwa Institute of Research and Japan Exchange Group. The Deputy Minister made it clear that the exchange was scheduled for launch by October this year.

There will be four types of securities licenses - Underwriter, Dealer, Broker, and Consultant. They require deposits of Ks 15b, 10b, 7b, and 30m respectively.

Concerning joint ventures, the Deputy Minister said "For joint ventures, the Myanmar shareholding ratio needs to be high."

Regarding the stock market, on January 21, the Financial Policy Research Institute under the Japan Ministry of Finance signed a Memorandum with the Myanmar Ministry of Finance to cooperate on the development of securities laws. Ministry of Land, Infrastructure, Transport, and Tourism dialog with Myanmar government

On January 15-16, Japan's Ministry of Land, Infrastructure, Transport and Tourism and the Myanmar government held a workshop in Yangon on

"Logistics Policy" where both sides shared lively opinions on the issues of Myanmar infrastructure. On January 15 during the dialog on Logistics Policy, in addition to discussing the general framework and concept of Logistics Policy, it was announced that work had started on the containerization of Yangon-Mandalay rail freight (promotion of freight rail modal shift).

During September and October, the Ministry conducted a feasibility study with the cooperation of the Myanmar government for container freight on the Yangon-Mandalay railway. The Myanmar government recognizes that improving logistics efficiency is important for economic development and that infrastructure, establishment of a legal framework, and development of human resources are key issues to tackle going forward.

On the January 16 workshop, the Japan Pallet Association explained how palletization (using standardized pallets for transport) could boost logistics efficiency and signed an Agreement with the Myanmar government to introduce pallets.

Reducing transport time with overland transport Kamigumi uses Myanmar-Thai land crossing

On January 27, major logistics company Kamigumi announced that it had successfully reduced transport time between Myanmar and Thailand by switching from sea to land transport. Historically, Myanmar-Thailand transport has relied on the sea route due to the difficult mountainous conditions between the two countries. But according to Kamigumi, they have reduced transport time from 19 days by sea to 6 days by land.

Kamigumi formed a joint venture with a Myanmar company in 2014 to enhance its transport efficiency by using its own vehicles.

In Myawaddy along the border with Thailand, construction of a bypass road is scheduled for completion by 2015 so logistics volumes are expected to increase. Kamigumi plans to offer regular overland transport services and is working to build a reliable overland transport network.

Let's Enjoy in Lovely Cheery Blossom Festival !

Cherry Blossom Festival is Long Standing in Japanese Custom

In the early Spring of Japan, the lovely Sakura flowers bloom all over the country. It is amazing, cheerful and people will feel like they are in a dream world. As the bloom spreads, the entire country celebrates; first in the south, then shifting northwards across the mountains. Cherry Blossom Festival (Sakura Hanami) is well known as a long standing Japanese custom. Hanami literally means viewing flowers; It also involves welcoming spring season with a picnic under the cherry blossom trees. Japanese Families gather together and share traditional foods. In Japan, spring is also the time of fresh beginnings, such as the new school year.

Background History of Cherry Blossom Festival

Cherry Blossom Festival is centuries-old. Hanami parties are mentioned in literature as early as 894, during the Heian era and have influenced Japanese culture, art, food, custom and theater to this day. The tradition was originally limited to the elite of the Imperial Court, but soon spread to samurai society and, by the Edo period; to the common people as well.

The festival has changed little over the centuries. It is more of a public festival nowadays with groups of friends and colleagues gathering to enjoy food and drink, play games, and sing and dance under blossom branches. Food and drink sellers line the main pathways, but most Japanese bring specially prepared homemade foods. The festivities start at lunchtime and continue in waves on through the night, and the country parks are lit up with colored lanterns.

Himeji Castle is Japan's national treasure and also a UNESCO world heritage site; it is located in the center of Himeji City, about 50 kilometers west of Kobe and about 650 kilometers west of Tokyo, Japan.

This Castle is decorated with hundreds of cherry trees.

Forecasting of the 2015 Cherry Blossom Festival

According to the Japan weather association's 2015 Cherry Blossom Festival forecast, this year's blossoms are likely to open at an average pace across the country. In January the blossoming starts in Okinawa and at the end of March or April reaches Kyoto and Tokyo.

Epic battles for Cherry Blossom viewing spots! The hardship of "Hanami"

The competition to secure good spots for Cherry Blossom viewing ("Hanami") in Tokyo is epic. Especially in the famous viewing areas of Ueno Park, where from early April onwards, overnight camps set up to compete for spots.

For many Tokyo companies and university clubs, Hanami is an annual tradition. They need to secure a location suitable for laying down a plastic sheet on which many people can drink and party. Typically, this task falls upon the new employees or club members.

If you want to secure a spot, you need to occupy it the night before and then guard it carefully from being taken.

Companies and clubs send 2-3 rookies to sit on their plastic sheets all night. It is still cold in Tokyo during April, so they need to wear multiple coats. Of course, the flowers are lit up beautifully at night, so some think these overnight guards have the advantage of seeing the cherry blossoms first.

Japanese typically don't drink during the afternoon, but Hanami is different. Empty beer cans quickly pile up on the plastic sheets. Many forget to enjoy the flowers and end up focusing on the drinking. If you want to see many drunken Japanese, then Ueno Park in April is ideal.

Occasionally, Hanami becomes a political issue. In March 2011 right after the Eastern Japan Earthquake, Tokyo Governor Ishihara urged self restraint during Hanami out of respect for the victims of the Tsunami. Some citizens countered that "We should continue to celebrate Hanami as always to show that Japan cannot be defeated by a Tsunami". That year, the Tokyo Government didn't provide the regular portable toilets and lighting, but some citizens still went for Hanami.

Top Interview

Teachings of a Myanmar Expert

In this section, MYANMAR JAPON's Mr. Nagasugi interviews Myanmar's leading personalities to uncover the realities of "Today's Myanmar".

Ambassador of
Myanmar Embassy in Japan

U Khin Maung Tin

This month's theme:

Myanmar and Japan's historically friendly relations – evolving to the next level

Ambassador of Myanmar Embassy in Japan

Born in 1955 in Shwe Bo city, he has an undergraduate degree in Physics and Masters Degree in Culture from the University of Defence. In 1976, he entered the military (Air Force) working in aviation and management rising from Second Lieutenant to Brigadier General. In September 2010, he was transferred to the Department of Foreign Affairs and in February 2011, was appointed as Ambassador to the Myanmar Embassy in Japan. He enjoys golf, reading, and calligraphy.

Gateway to success

Nagasugi It is an honor to interview you today. I understand that the position of Ambassador to Japan is viewed as a gateway to success as seen in the rise of the previous Ambassador to Japan, U Hla Myint, to Mayor of Yangon. Khin Maung Tin, you were previously an Air Force Brigadier General. What do you think of your current position?

Tin My goal is to deepen the friendly relations between Myanmar and Japan. In 2011, Myanmar started its reforms under the guidance of the President producing major changes across politics, business, and general society. Countries have various opinions on our reforms, but Japan provides us with a lot of support.

Nagasugi You started your posting in February, 2011. Since then, amongst all your work as ambassador, what has left the deepest impression on you?

Tin Soon after my appointment, I had to prepare for the visit of Japan's Minister of Foreign Affairs to Myanmar. Then in 2012, I coordinated the visit of the President to Japan. After that, in 2013 I played a key role in the visit of Prime Minister Abe to Myanmar.

The Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs was very cooperative and the meetings all went smoothly. In addition to diplomacy at the inter-governmental level, we worked on promoting various citizen exchanges. We pushed for more Myanmar foreign students to come to Japan and focused on development assistance in areas of health and medicine. We also invited Japanese media personalities to visit Myanmar and helped set up the Kyodo News office in Myanmar.

Japanese national character – serious and friendly

Nagasugi Thanks to the Ambassador's efforts, the friendly relations between Japan and Myanmar are at an all-time high. I understand you have visited many places in Japan, so what is your impression of Japanese society?

Tin I was impressed that wherever you go in Japan, things are beautiful and tidy. Japanese people behave politely and I feel the social system is strong and structured. For example, it is amazing how precisely the transport system follows time schedules. Also, I was impressed by how the Japanese work – planning ahead and paying close attention to detail.

Nagasugi You could say that being polite is also a strong point of Myanmar people. I think that Myanmar people have high literacy rates and are smart, serious, friendly, and warm-hearted. Many Japanese living in Yangon feel this way.

Tin Myanmar people are certainly friendly. They are diligent and hard-working. There are also many who are content in life. Their satisfaction level is high. Their faith is deep and they are very charitable. With three generations of family live together, people learn to respect their parents, elders, and monks.

Efforts to attract investment

Nagasugi Several decades ago, the atmosphere in Japan was similar to feel now in Myanmar. With many common points between Japan and Myanmar, what are your future expectations for relations between the two countries?

Tin I'm hoping economic exchange will develop Myanmar. At the embassy, we helped organize

"Myanmar Festival 2015" schedule set

The "Myanmar Festival 2014" during October 18-19 to celebrate the "60th Anniversary of the Establishment of Diplomatic Relations between Myanmar and Japan" was a big success. The event venue at Zojoji Temple in Shiba, Minato-ku, Tokyo hosted over 60,000 participants, which was close to double the first event in 2013.

The "Myanmar Festival 2015" is planned for this fall November 28-29. The celebration of 60 years of diplomatic relations was a symbolic milestone. But for the "61 years" in 2015, the bonds between Myanmar and Japan will undoubtedly broaden and deepen.

At the Meeting room of Myanmar Embassy in Japan economic seminars by Keidanren, JETRO, Japan Chamber of Commerce Yangon, and others to help bridge the two countries. I believe this helped expand Japanese investment into Myanmar and played a major role in business matching between Japan and Myanmar companies.

Nagasugi Myanmar has well-educated human resources, vast untapped natural resources, and the geographic advantage of being located strategically between the giants of China and India. But the reality is that once foreign companies invest, they face major problems with basic industrial infrastructure such as electricity and logistics.

Tin The government recognizes these problems and has prioritized overcoming them. Until recently, international sanctions made it difficult to solve these problems, but the government is tackling the issues by developing legal infrastructure such as the revised Foreign Investment Law, simplifying administrative procedures, and enhancing services of financial institutions.

Nagasugi It seems we can expect rapid development of the investment environment.

Tin Yes, correct. Although our infrastructure is lacking, this also creates a big investment opportunity for foreign companies. It is now realistic for companies to develop businesses within their level of risk tolerance. Japanese companies have various advantages such as technological/financial power and trustworthiness. I hope they will continue to invest in Myanmar.

Further evolution of friendly relations

Nagasugi Going forward, it seems Myanmar and Japan will continue to deepen their relations.

Warm relations between Japan and Myanmar continue to evolve and develop..

Tin There are many major projects involving Japanese companies – Mitsubishi and JALUX working on the Mandalay Airport project, three Japanese mega-banks getting banking licenses, MPT working with KDDI to upgrade communications infrastructure, Japanese companies advising on the setting up of a local stock exchange, and Japanese leading the development of Thilawa SEZ, to name a few.

Myanmar needs foreign investment. I hope that the international community will continue to support our reforms and efforts to build a democratic and modernized country. I am grateful for all the work of the Japanese government and its various organizations and private companies to strengthen the relations and mutual understanding between our two countries, and I look forward to continuing to maintain and develop friendly relations.

Nagasugi The number of tourists visiting Myanmar is rising, and likely to rapidly increase in the future.

Tin Myanmar has many amazing tourist spots such as famous Hkakabo Razi Mountain, scenic Inle Lake, and world heritage site candidate Bagan, which I believe will attract many tourists.

Also, Japanese ODA (Overseas Development Assistance) is supporting the development of railway infrastructure. The Yangon-Bago railway connection is undergoing to upgrade now.

Nagasugi The gap between vision and reality is still huge, but it seems change is headed in the right direction.

Tin Change takes time, but certainly we're headed in the right direction and I'm confident we'll reach our destination. Last year we celebrated the "60th Anniversary of the Establishment of Diplomatic Relations between Myanmar and Japan", and I'm sure our historically friendly relations will continue to evolve and develop.

Nagasugi The mutual expectations of Myanmar and Japan towards each other are high. I hope that our relations can continue to develop along a sure-footed path. Thanks for meeting during such a busy time for you.

「Hosting a Japanese Literature Festival」

Minister of Information U Ye Htut

In January, Minister of Information U Ye Htut told MYANMAR JAPON that he suggested to host a Japan Literature Festival based on the Norwegian civic group sponsored Noble Literature event. The Minister, who is also an author and very knowledgeable on literature, shared with us his views on the state of Japan-Myanmar cultural exchanges and Myanmar literature.

PROFILE

Born in 1959, He served in military from 1997 to 2005. In 2012 he became the Deputy Minister and then in 2014 the Minister. He is also the spokesperson for President U Thein Sein.

Some people feel Myanmar literature is stagnating. What do you think?

Some people feel that literature stagnated under the Tatmadaw Government, but this is not correct. Writers are just making excuses for their lack of talent. Censorship was much stricter under the Socialist Regime, but during that time many excellent books were written, and you could say that the 1980s was the golden era for the short story.

We heard that you love to read. Have you read much Japanese literature?

In Myanmar, there is not a lot of Japanese literature available, but I have read most of what is available like the famous novel "The Burmese Harp", haiku poetry, and the well-known movie "Rashomon". When I was a student, I learned a lot about Japanese history and politics, especially the Meiji Restoration. The Toyota Foundation used to translate Myanmar literature into Japanese to introduce it to Japan. Similarly, I wish there was more translation of Japanese books into Myanmar language.

Japan and Myanmar have close relations. Japan played a key role in Myanmar's independence movement. While there were regrettable actions during WWII, most Myanmar people have forgiven Japan. To further deepen both countries good relations, I think we should hold a Japan Literature Festival, similar to the Noble Literature Festival.

The influence of the internet and social media is strong.

Myanmar people have weak media literacy, and their poor ability to analyze the news is a problem. Many believe that whatever is written on facebook is the truth. We need a campaign to educate on how to use the internet correctly. But the government should not do this, and we need civic groups to lead the way.

Many foreign media are setting up branches in Yangon.

We are cooperating with foreign media. We are working together on programs for journalist education. We have tie-ups with BBC, NHK, and German and Australian reporting organizations. As part of a journalist education program, there are two Myanmar National TV staff working at NHK. Also, Kyodo News is working with the government newspaper.

Enjoying books in Myanmar

Myanmar people love to read. During January 18-20, visitors packed the National Theater Hall in Yangon for the Noble Literature Festival which featured over 50 book stalls.

Stalls with translations of famous Japanese writers like Yasunari Kawabata

President U Thein Sein sent the Opening Remarks and many Ministers including Minister of Information U Ye Htut attended the event. Opposition party NLD Chairperson Daw Aung San Suu Kyi also sent a video message which attracted a lot of attention.

Walking in the streets of Yangon, you will see many used book stalls, especially Downtown at the corner of Pansodan St and Merchant St. A wide range of books on business, Buddhism, and textbooks are on sale. There are many old magazines starting from Ks 300. There are also a lot of books on Business English and guide-books.

If you are inspired by the Myanmar passion for reading, but can't find any Japanese language book to read, you can always use the library at the Japan Club. They have many books on Myanmar and also picture books and children's books. They allow 1 person to borrow up to 5 books for 1 week.

Japan Club library has a children's corner

Yangon also has Western Book Stores including Monument Books in Bahan Township which has books on travel, business, cooking and many others including children's picture books. The British Council and the American Center also lend books.

Monument Books has a wide range of foreign journals and books

Popular Festival in Myanmar and Japan

Month: March

SHWEDAGON PAGODA FESTIVAL

The Shwedagon Pagoda Festival, which is the largest pagoda festival in the country, begins during the new moon of the month of Tabaung in the traditional Myanmar Lunar Calendar which usually takes place in late February or early March and continues until the full moon. Thousands of people gather during the festival especially in the early morning of the Full moon of Tabaung, and you will get squeezed by all the crowds as you walk up to the Pagoda area.

Visitors come from all over Myanmar, dressed in their best, to make offerings of water, light and flowers at the country's most important pagoda. There is also a five-day festival leading up to the full moon where teams of weavers compete to loom the most cloth (call MaTho Thin Gan) for the Buddha Images which must be completed within a night. People and Monks offer those Ma Tho Thingan robes to the Buddha Images in Shwedagon. Many individual people offer water, light and flowers to the hundreds of Buddha Images in the pagoda grounds in the early morning, but there is the bog gathering in the evening with 9,000 lights and 9,000 flowers. The event for this year 2015 will be on 4th March, Full moon day of Tabaung.

Hina Matsuri (Girl's Day) Festival

In Japan, Hina Matsuri Festival (Dolls or girl festival) is a special day celebrated on March 3 to pray for young girls' health and happiness. On that day, families who have daughters set up a display of dolls in their home with peach blossoms. The dolls represent the Emperor, Empress, attendants and musicians in traditional costumes of the Heian period (794-1192). Families also offer colorful rice crackers and foodstuff to the dolls.

During the Edo Period (1603-1868) the festival was set on the third day of the third month of Japan's lunar calendar. The festival is as a way of warding off evil spirits, with the dolls acting as a charm. Nowadays in some parts of Japan, people release paper dolls in rivers for the festival. People believe these dolls will carry away people's sickness and bad lucks.

Japan Sports Day Competition amongst over 300 Japanese

On January 17, Yangon Japanese School and Yangon Japanese Association held a joint sports day for students, their siblings, and Association members. The exciting event featured over 300 participants.

There were 13 school events and 4 Association events for a total of 17 events. The competition was heated with the ball shoot event resulting in multiple ties requiring extended finals and an exciting tug-of-war and round-the-school relay. The number of Japanese School students is expected to increase 50% over last year. With scale of the event increasing, there is debate over whether they can continue to do it together with the Japanese Association.

Connecting Japanese and Myanmar Companies Many participants seeking business opportunities

On January 29, the Japan Myanmar Economy Investment Center (JMEIC) held a business matching event at Yangon's SME Center for small and medium sized enterprises. Thirteen Japanese companies from various areas including logistics, HR, and auto parts production participated in the seminar and conducted business discussions with Myanmar companies. Last year JMEIC hosted a business matching event in July, but this event was the first time to have over 100 participants. On January 30, participants exchanged views on the issues faced by Myanmar SMEs.

Japanese tennis specialty store donates 558 rackets

On January 24, Capital Sports, which manages Racket Plaza tennis specialty stores, donated 558 rackets. They recycled the testing rackets of Yonex and Mizuno which otherwise would have been scrapped. The transport was donated by Nippon Express. Myanmar tennis players are estimated at 20,000-30,000, but the spread of the game is held back by lack of equipment. For Myanmar tennis, the Tsukuba University Tennis Tournament is teaming up with the Yangon Japanese Association tennis club to invite Myanmar tennis players to Japan and expand the support network for the sport.

HIDA conducts HR development seminar Held at UMFCCI

On January 23, the Overseas Human Resources and Industry Development Association (HIDA), which supports HR development in developing countries, held an HR development seminar at UMFCCI Yangon.

The seminar was opened by Japanese Ambassador Mr. Tadashi Higuchi and UMFCCI President U Win Aung. Then Japanese researchers gave a presentation on HR development issues in Myanmar.

HIDA focuses on HR development for technology and business in Asian and African developing countries.

Nippon Foundation opens 6th Prosthetist Training School in SE Asia

Myanmar's national University of Medical Technology recently launched the country's first training course for prosthetists. On January 17, the opening ceremony was attended by Myanmar Minister of Health U Than Aung, groups supporting the venture including Nippon Foundation and English NGO Exceed, and various representatives from the university and media. This was the 6th Prosthetist Training School opened in SE Asia by the Nippon Foundation. In SE Asia, the needs for prosthetics are relatively high due to deformations from land mines, polio, and traffic accidents.

Children's Art Exhibition Supported by KDDI

On January 17-22, a Children's Art Exhibition was held at Yangon's New ZeroArt Space with the cooperation of KDDI.

The displayed works were painted at a children's art workshop organized by a Japanese teacher last year in Pan Nae Gone Village. There were 56 children participating and 16 pieces of art were sold.

On January 17, KDDI hosted a Skype video call on the high speed connection at the KDDI Business Center for the children to enjoy sharing their art work experiences with a children's art program in Cambodia.
